AMERICANS IN ABABA ORDERED TO ASSEMBLE AT BRITISH LEGATION IN EVENT OF ITALIAN ATTACK

SENATE REMOVES U. S. JUDGE RITTER FOR MISCONDUCT

Exact Two-Thirds Majority of 56 to 28 Convicts Florida Jurist on 7th Ballot After 6 Times Acquitting Him of Counts.

FINAL ROLL CALL LUMPS CHARGES

'I'm Going Back to Florida,' Says Defendant, Who Brought Court 'In to Scandal, Disrepute.'

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—Concluding his twelfth impeachment trial, the senate, 56 to 28, today convicted Federal Judge I. Ritter, of Florida, of misconduct and removed him from office.

The vote came on the last of seven rapid fire ballots and was exactly the two-thirds majority required by the constitution.

No appeal is possible.

Six previous roll calls had acquitted the 65-year-old jurist of as many specific charges. The last count combined all the others and added the accusation Ritter had brought his court "into scandal and disrepute."

Shaking his head wearily, Ritter left the chamber with his counsel, Frank P. Walsh and Carl T. Hoffman. He said:

"I'm Going Back."

"I have nothing to say, God, you can see why I have nothing to say. I'm going back to Florida."

Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, put in an order which would have added to the punishment by barring Ritter from ever holding any other federal position of trust, but this was voted down, 70 to 0.

The first six ballots had declared him innocent of house charges he granted an exorbitant fee of $75,000 to A. L. Rankin, a former law partner; unlawfully received $4,500 from Rankin afterward; connived with Rankin and others to bring the Whitehall hotel receivership suit in his court; violated the judicial code twice by practicing law while on the bench; and evaded income taxes on part of his 1929 and 1930 income.

A change of one vote on the first ballot would have found the defendant guilty of allowing the West Palm Beach attorney an excessive fee.

The ballots on the first six articles were 55 for conviction and 29 for acquittal; 52 and 24; 44 and 39; 36 and 48; 36 and 48; 46 and 37. The defense got a majority only on the fourth and fifth articles.

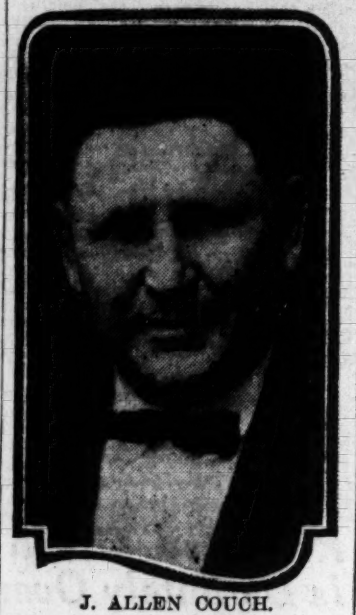

Roll Call.

The roll call on which Ritter was convicted followed:

For conviction:
Democrats—Adams, Ashurst, Bachman, Bailey, Bilbo, Black, Bone, Brown, Bullock, Bulow, Byrd, Caraway, Chaves, Clark, Connally, Coolidge, Dietrich, Donahay, Duffy, Fletcher, George, Glass, Guffey, Harrison, Hatch, McAdoo, McGill, McKellar, Minton, Murphy, Murray, Neely, O'Mahoney, Pittman, Radcliffe, Reynolds, Robinson, Russell, Schwellenbach, Sheppard, Thomas.

FASCIST ROUNDUP IS BEGUN IN SPAIN

Two More Killed as Hundreds Are Arrested in Attempt to Stem Riots.

MADRID, April 17.—(AP)—Spanish authorities, seeking to halt political disturbances which have claimed five lives in the last two days, began a wholesale roundup of members of the fascist party today.

Several hundred followers of the militant sector of Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera's fascist party were arrested.

The government struck out in a stern attempt to prevent further disorders as two new fatalities today were added to three deaths in rioting yesterday.

A general strike paralyzed business in the capital and an undetermined number of persons was injured in scattered clashes.

Eloy Gomez Fernandez and his brother, Antonio, died at the hands of three gunmen who fired on them as they left their home.

Both were members of a family of five brothers, all allied with the fascist party.

A heavy guard was thrown around the building where the cortes (parliament) was in session after rumors persisted in the lobbies that the army was about to march on the building.

The general strike, called after yesterday's clash of communists and fascists continued through the day.

Restaurants and movies in the capital were closed. Several banks shut their doors but hotels and drug stores remained open.

Most of the shops were closed after small groups of strikers announced the walkout in the various neighborhoods.

POLICE WRANGLE RESULTS IN CALL FOR RESIGNATIONS

Renewed Outburst Over Drinking Policemen Is Signal for Demand and Committeemen's Refusal

Affairs of the police committee of city council were in a bigger muddle than ever yesterday, following Thursday night's hectic meeting, as demands were made for all committeemen to resign for the "good of the city" and definite refusals to quit were made by four of the members.

Differences between Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the committee, and Councilman J. Allen Couch flared up Thursday night over administration policies. Councilman Raleigh Drennon declared Mayor Key should oust the entire committee and replace it with men who can operate police affairs harmoniously without reflecting on city council and the police department.

Couch made a lengthy denial yesterday that he was drunk or intoxicated at the meeting Thursday, as Chairman Bridges was quoted as charging.

"There was not a drop of intoxicant in my body," Couch said.

Council Fight Hinted.

Intimation that the matter will be brought up in city council Monday was attributed to Bridges, who said last night that he may take "steps" today. He declined to reveal the "steps."

Councilman Drennon was emphatic in his demands that the police committee should be absolutely done away with, either by the voluntary resignation of all the members or by Mayor Key's ousting of the five committeemen.

Key himself refused to make any announcement yesterday. He had an hour-long private conference with Chairman Bridges and neither would comment afterward.

It seemed, however, that none of

GENERAL STRIKE LOOMS ON PACIFIC

San Francisco Longshoremen, Employers Split; Other Ports Pledge Aid.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—(AP)—Fear of a general port shutdown grew along the troubled waterfront tonight as the longshoremen patrolled the docks, apparently watching for any move to put stevedores to work under provisions contrary to their terms.

The longshoremen, who are employed by the union, said no men were applying for jobs. Only seven ships were working by the waterfront today, according to the dispatching hall jointly operated by the union and the shippers in accordance with the bloody 1934 waterfront strike.

The longshoremen spurned the employers' offer. They voted last night around the waterfront to refuse employment at the docks and to carry their case to other longshoremen along the coast.

TALMADGE SLATED TO SCAN BUDGETS

To Return From Two-Day Absence; Ax Sharpened for 40 to 50 Employees.

Governor Talmadge is slated to return to the capitol this morning after a two-day absence and take up the quarterly budgets awaiting his approval. Reports are current that from 40 to 50 more state employees, whose department heads have been checking their loyalty to the Talmadge regime are scheduled to be dismissed.

Thirteen officials and employees were dropped Thursday, presumably on orders from the Governor.

An official, high in the councils of the Talmadge administration, yesterday was quoted as saying that the administration "is checking every official and every employee from every department and office for loyalty to the Governor and the things for which he stands."

Minor officials and employees were wondering who was next to go. Observers said that some employees of the state department of education, headed by Dr. M. D. Collins, who is an ardent follower of the Governor, might feel the axe while others believed that the office of Secretary of State John B. Wilson would get some attention.

The Governor should decide to dismiss any workers in either of these two offices it is expected that he would use the authority granted him in the pay roll act to strike from the pay roll any employee whose salary he does not approve such as he did three years ago when he struck the highway department, an action which ultimately resulted in the removal of Captain J. W. Barnett as highway commissioner and W. C. Verren, of Moultrie, as commissioner.

The quarterly budgets usually are

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—A cotton exchange commission, similar to the Securities Exchange Commission, proposed today by Senator Hubert H. Hubbard, former president of the New York Cotton Exchange.

3 Children Are Sent to Reformatory For Refusing To Salute U. S. Flag

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 17.—(UP)—A judge in his home city of the late President Calvin Coolidge today sentenced three children to a school of correction after they had refused, on religious grounds, to salute the American flag.

The children, two sons and a daughter of Ignace Opilowski, Belchertown farmer and member of the religious sect known as Jehovah's Witnesses, ranged in age from 6 to 9 years.

They were sentenced to Hampden County Training school on delinquency charges growing out of their persistent refusal to salute the Stars and Stripes—a weekly salute by school children being compulsory under a state patriotic law.

The action was taken by District Judge John W. Mason at a private juvenile session. It was believed unprecedented in the history of American jurisprudence.

The children, whose first names were withheld, were freed pending

TURKEY OCCUPIES PROHIBITED ZONE OF DARDANELLES

Troops Move Into Treaty-Demilitarized Area in Surprise Coup; Claims of Sovereignty Studied.

ANKARA, April 17.—(UP)—Duplicating Germany's sensational military reoccupation of the Rhineland, Turkish troops today occupied the Dardanelles demilitarized zones.

Without warning, the Turkish forces tramped into the Dardanelles zones while European governments were studying the Ankara government's recent note asking consideration of its desire to regain full military sovereignty over all Turkish territory.

Great Britain had expressed her willingness to discuss the Turkish note without delay.

Paris dispatches reported the Turkish request.

Turkish reoccupation of the Dardanelles and other waterways territory was restricted by the treaty of Lausanne. Ten nations, as treaty signatories, are interested in the demilitarization of Turkish straits.

Decision to reoccupy the Dardanelles zones was reached at a cabinet meeting Thursday night when President Ataturk presided. The decision was taken in the presence of Marshal Fevzi, chief of staff of the Turkish army.

Turkey's bold move further complicated the delicate European crisis, and observers predicted that Bulgaria would be next to flout the World War treaties.

Demilitarization of the forbidden areas on either side of the tortuous Dardanelles straits, in effect, closes the Black sea to all navies excepting Russian.

PWA POWER, GOLD GO TO HIGH COURT

Dixie Companies Contest Loans to Public Plants; Alien Appeals on Other.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—Two New Deal cases, challenging the validity of PWA loans for publicly owned hydroelectric projects and of the government's seizure of gold held in this country by foreign corporations, were appealed today to the supreme court.

Both were won by the government in the lower courts.

The Dixie Power Company and Southern Public Utilities Company appealed from a ruling by the circuit court of appeals at Charlotte, N. C., upholding a PWA loan and grant of $2,850,000 for a Greenwood county (South Carolina) power plant.

The petition asserted the government was attempting to "coerce private utilities to reduce their rates."

In the other case, a Swiss corporation, Teberese Finanz Korporation Aktien Gesellschaft, appealed from a ruling by the second circuit court of appeals denying an injunction against turning gold with a face value of $1,250,000 over to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at the direction of the treasury.

The petition contended the Swiss concern did not have to abide by the anti-gold hoarding legislation because it was "an alien corporation, alien owned and controlled and never engaged in business within the United States."

It owned the gold before the legislation was enacted and contended the coin was worth more than $2,100,000 if exported to Switzerland. The treasury would pay the face value in present-day currency.

Officials said final decisions in both cases, if the court should agree to review them, would be deferred until next fall unless extraordinary procedure is resorted to.

Under present plans, only one more week of arguments, beginning April 27, will be held before adjournment in June.

PEACE TALKS FAIL; COUNCIL IS CALLED

Ethiopia Rejects II Duce's Program; Italy Refuses French Armistice Plea.

GENEVA, April 17.—(AP)—League of Nations negotiations for peace between Italy and Ethiopia collapsed today.

A special session of the council was called for Monday to deal with the critical situation.

Italy, confident her troops would be in Addis Ababa by next week, rejected an earnest French appeal for an armistice to permit peace negotiations and ease the international tension.

The Ethiopian delegation firmly refused to accept a peace program advanced by II Duce and the committee of 13, which is the council without effect.

Italy is prepared to participate in Monday's session to state her case again. An Italian spokesman said it was too early to say whether troops could take Addis Ababa by then, but "a thousand mortar lorries already are rolling in that direction from Desage."

France, trying to keep both Italy and Ethiopia from standing in the Rhineland crisis, sought a way out by appealing to Italy to halt hostilities, even for a short period.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, French minister of state, Aloisi telephoned Rome and Paul-Boncour announced the request had been refused.

A resolution concerning the war probably will be adopted by the council Monday for submission to all members of the League. Great Britain was said to hope the League resolution would show that the international organization behind Ethiopia and Italy was in an effort to secure peace.

The Italian spokesman said his delegation would come to Monday's meeting.

Two Children Killed In Porterdale Cave

PORTERDALE, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—Two children were killed at play in a gully in a pasture near here today when a 15-foot embankment caved in and buried them under tons of earth.

The children were Louise Moat, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Moat, and Jack Hancock, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hancock. The parents of both are employees of the Bibb Mill here.

A third child, Lois Moat, was seriously hurt in the cave-in and was hurried to a hospital for treatment but the Hancock boy and Louise Moat were dead upon arrival.

The children were digging in the bank when it caved in on them. All three were buried under tons of earth.

Flares Dropped.

One of the Caproni machines, its bomb racks empty, circled Addis Ababa at less than 3,000 feet, dropping red, white and green signal flares.

The natives, mistaking the rockets for gas bombs, stuffed leaves from eucalyptus trees into their nostrils and scampered for shelter. A large package of leaflets dropped by the plane, was not found.

Since it had rained last night the flight came as a complete surprise. Many officials charged that the Italian planes unleashed a burst of machine gun fire while flying over the emperor's new gray-stone palace. Italian machine gun bullets were picked up in the palace grounds. One woman was badly burned by an unexploded parachute flare.

In a brief report to his government the emperor said he was safe with 20,000 loyal troops moving to the defense of Addis Ababa.

Emperor Haile Selassie, in Brief Report, Declares He Is Safe With 20,000 Troops En Route to City.

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

ADDIS ABABA, April 17.—(UP)—Fearing hostilities as Italian troops closed in on Emperor Haile Selassie's capital, Cornelius Van H. Ensser, United States minister resident in Ethiopia, today ordered all American residents of Addis Ababa to concentrate at the British legation in event of emergency.

Another spectacular flight of Italian bombing airplanes over the capital prompted the order.

The flight also galvanized the government into action. It made plans to move the seat of government westward if necessary.

Meanwhile, Emperor Haile Selassie, in the field with remnants of his imperial bodyguard, vanquished in the battle of Lake Ashangi, notified his officials here that he plans to remain in the field.

He characterized reports he plans to flee to the British colony of Kenya as "ridiculous" but said he does not desire to maintain constant communication with Addis Ababa for fear of revealing his position.

Emperor Sought.

For weeks Italian airplanes have conducted a relentless search for the emperor.

After finally admitting that Dessalegn has fallen to the Italians, Ethiopian officials ordered the erection of strong fortifications to guard Addis Ababa from assault.

The appearance of Italian planes this morning plunged the populace into panic. Scores were trampled in the rush for safety. Two automobiles were wrecked and numerous mules were killed as terrified thousands ran for the hills and bomb-proof dugouts.

Panic reached its highest pitch when two bombers, flying over the capital, exploded rockets displaying the Italian colors. After shouting over the center of the city they flew off to the north.

Children Are Sent to Refuge by Refusing To Salute U.S. Flag

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 17.—A judge in his home city of Northampton, Pa., sentenced three children to a year of correction after they had refused to salute the American flag on the American flag grounds, to salute the American flag.

The children, two sons and a daughter, Ignace Opiechowski, Belcherston Opiechowski, and a daughter, known as Jehorah's Witnesses, were in age from 6 to 9 years.

The children were sentenced to Hampton Falls, N. H., to a reformatory, where they are growing out of their persistence to salute the Stars and Stripes—a weekly salute by school children being compulsory under a state patriotic law.

The action was taken by District Judge John W. Mason at a private hearing session. It was believed unnecessary in the history of American jurisprudence.

The children, whose first names are withheld, were freed pending an appeal to the state supreme court. They are of Brooklyn (N. Y.) and are resentenced and fined.

Appealing fines of $100 were assessed for each of the children, Opiechowski, and $50 for each of the other two children, after posting bonds for $100.

Sentences were imposed on the state supreme court, which is now in session, and the children, Nicholas Jr. of Lynn, Mass., and Young N. of Lynn, Mass., are also a member of the same group.

The children are now in the state supreme court, where they are held for the first time.

The children first refused to salute the flag several times.

FEDERAL SCHOOL AID URGED BY DR. SANFORD

J. Harold Saxon Is Named
President of Education Association.

MACON, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—Federal aid for the support of schools was urged tonight by Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System of Georgia, in his presidential address before the Georgia Education Association.

"The education of our people is a duty of government, not of local government alone, nor of state government alone, but also a duty of the federal government," he said in his address before more than 4,000 teachers and school officials in the spacious city auditorium.

"The farmer has been given federal aid, so has the banker, so has the unemployed. It would seem no more than fair that the federal government should undertake the obligation of aiding education."

Saxon Elected.
Earlier today, J. Harold Saxon, superintendent of Quitman schools, was elected president to succeed Dr. Sanford, and Boyce M. Grier, superintendent of Athens schools, was elected vice president.

Other speakers of the day included Sandy Beaver, of Gainesville, chairman of the board of regents; Dr. F. J. Kelly, of Washington, director of the National Youth Movement, and Miss Bertha Rachel Palmer, national director of the W. C. T. U.

In advocating greater centralization of support for schools, Dr. Sanford said:

"America is committed to the principle of free public schools and it's unfair to deny the children of one community the opportunities granted to another."

"Federal aid is justified on the principle that since industries which draw their income from all parts of the nation are concentrated in relatively small areas, it is just that these industries or individuals who draw their income from these areas should contribute their full share toward public education."

"The tenant farmer, the day laborer, or whatever his occupation may be, is entitled to an education for his children because he is a part of our economic structure."

"Every worker is attempting to add to the welfare and to the wealth of the nation. The federal government should do its part in supporting the man's contribution to the nation and help in the support of the children."

Dr. Sanford advocated depending school support from "direct dependence upon property taxes."

In arguing for a lifting of the burden of real estate taxation, Dr. Sanford suggested a "non-political state tribunal with the power to keep the taxation of real estate within the limits of the public needs and of the taxpayers' ability to pay."

Of other forms of taxation, he said: "A tax on the income of intangibles at a uniform rate which constitutes the only tax under state authority on this class of property coupled with a tax at a lower rate on earned income, constitutes, perhaps, the best system of income taxation under state authority."

"Another solution of the tax on intangibles is to put them in a class by themselves and to tax them at a low flat rate either upon capital or income."

"I shall refrain from discussing the sales tax, other than to say that experience indicates that the manufacturers' sales tax is subject to less objection than the other forms of sales tax."

Rivers Speaks.
One of the main features of the convention was the address of Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house of representatives, before the Georgia Home Economics Association this afternoon, at a luncheon.

He said there is a fight in Georgia as in the nation between the progressive and reactionary elements. Just as the progressive type of government is the only one that can survive.

ernment is dedicated to primarily help people, said the speaker, a reactionary type is dedicated to the accumulation of property and social prestige.

The progressive platform of a democratic government as laid down in 1832, he said, is now being carried out in the social security program. The government, he added, is helping home ownership. The FHA is designed to aid in home ownership. The HOLC is a program to assist the home owner.

In spite of these facts, he said, "there is now in Georgia a reactionary school of thought in the executive of the state attempting to block all the programs of social welfare of the federal government."

He closed with reference to the old-age pension from which some other states have already received aid, but which Georgia has not acted upon.

Paul D. West, principal of the Russell High school at East Point, was elected tonight to head the Emory University unit of the G. E. A. at the annual banquet.

Walter P. Jones, superintendent of the Bibb county schools, was elected vice president at the meeting which was addressed by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools.

WINNETT FARMERS SAID IN FINE SHAPE
LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—A. G. Robinson, Winnetton county farm agent, contended today farmers here are "better off than any group of farmers in the state."

As proof of improved conditions in the county, Robinson said only 322 applications for seed loans had been made this year as compared with 650 last year and 1,100 before the federal farm program was instituted.

"This shows," he said, "that farmers are now making enough money from their crops to finance themselves the next season."

He predicted 80 to 90 per cent of the farmers in the county would participate in the new soil conservation program, bringing approximately $250,000 additional revenue to Winnetton farmers.

NANCE IS RE-ELECTED HEAD OF LABOR BODY

Selection of 1937 Convention
at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—A. Steve Nance was re-elected president of the Georgia Federation of Labor by unanimous action of the state convention held this afternoon, and shortly afterward the three-day meeting was brought to a close. Selection of a convention city for 1937 was left to the executive committee of the federation.

District vice presidents were also named as follows: W. C. Jeffries, from the Columbus district; William Van Houten, from the Atlanta district; J. O. Morgan, from the Macon district; L. B. Furick, from the Savannah district; and J. P. Spies, from the Augusta district.

O. E. Petty, of Columbus, was re-elected secretary and treasurer. Jack Savage, of Atlanta, was re-elected chief counsel, and W. D. Lanier, of Augusta, was re-elected associate counsel.

The legislative committee was elected as follows: S. G. Brown, Columbus; J. P. Buff, Macon; Mrs. May W. Cain, Savannah; J. K. Rogers, Augusta; Miss Allie Mann, Atlanta; and Otto Swinford, Rome. The organizers elected were: M. F. Davis, Savannah; J. T. Price, Macon; Leon D. Wofford, Atlanta; J. D. Norwood, Columbus; H. H. Stewart, Augusta; P. M. Maxwell, 463; and H. E. McGinnis, Waycross.

Mr. Lanier, associate counsel for the federation, and a member of the state legislature, attacked Governor Talmadge and during the course of his talk reminded the delegates that the situation cannot be remedied merely by the defeat of Talmadge.

The attorney pointed out that the state government is divided into three branches, executive, judicial and legislative. He urged, in addition to the defeat of Talmadge, that labor should have proper representatives in the legislative and judicial branches.

Mr. Lanier decried the fact that some delegates vote for certain resolutions while attending conventions and then act otherwise.

Roy Harris, also a member of the state legislature from Augusta, declared that the legislature has been throttled by the constitutional provisions which provide for sessions only every two years instead of annually, and the fact that the legislature is adjourned by operation of law after 60 days in session.

Organized labor unions in mass production industries by unit, rather than by numbers of unions, was urged today by the Georgia Federation of Labor, despite opposition of some delegates who said the proposal was a "slap in the face" for President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor.

President Green has favored the "vertical," or trade union plan of organization, as opposed to the unit, or "horizontal" union.

The proposition, adopted after a half-hour discussion, said industrial development has resulted in mass production "in many industries, including automobiles, cement, rubber, steel, etc."

The "millions of workers" in these industries have evidenced a desire to "affiliate themselves with our trade union movement, provided they are permitted to do so in such units as will permit them to use their full economic strength in cases of necessity," the proposition said.

The federation voted 63 to 43 against a resolution indorsing Sunday amusements.

The federation this afternoon adopted resolutions approving the Clark's Hill dam on the Savannah river, 21 miles above Augusta. The resolution praised the federation's president, A. Steve Nance, for his efforts in behalf of the project.

The resolutions were introduced by the Augusta delegation.

The proposal that the maximum working hours and minimum wages of women workers in Georgia should be fixed by law today had the indorsement of the Federation.

The resolution on feminine working hours and wages was adopted late yesterday after sponsors had argued that women employees in the state were overworked and underpaid.

F.D.R. ASKS INVENTORY INTO STATE OF NATION

Addresses Publishers in Convention Assembled in New York.

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—An inventory into the state of the nation as "revealed by the public press" was urged today by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in a special message to American publishers.

Through Editor and Publisher, weekly trade journal, President Roosevelt asked the newspaper publishers and executives gathering here for the annual meeting of the Associated Press and American Newspaper Publishers' Association next week to review events since the meeting last year.

"It gives me great pleasure through the medium of Editor and Publisher again to send hearty felicitations to the members of the Press Association, the publishers, editors and advertisers in connection with their annual meetings in New York," he wrote.

"This yearly gathering of the various instrumentalities which a great statesman of an earlier day so aptly called 'the fourth estate' invites an inventory into our standing as a nation as revealed in the public press since the meeting a year ago. And surely the business and financial pages of all of our newspapers have given a cheerful chronicle of improvement in business throughout the nation."

"In the hope that the record of improvement so uniformly reflected by the press during the year which has passed since I last addressed you may be maintained and strengthened in the year to follow, I wish for the various bodies which will gather in New York a successful solution of all the problems which will come before them for consideration."

"Very sincerely yours,"
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

SOCIOLOGICAL GROUP ENDS SESSION TODAY

Experts From All Southern States Discuss Problems at Parley Here.

With a discussion of regional studies and planning, southern sociologists closed the first day of the annual meeting of the Southern Sociological Society last night at the Biltmore hotel.

Attracting sociologists from all southern states, the sessions yesterday were held on three topics, "Social Welfare and Public Policy," led by G. Croft Williams, University of South Carolina; "Race and Culture," led by E. W. Gregory Jr., University of Alabama; and "Regional Studies and Planning," with Howard W. Odum, University of North Carolina, as chairman.

Southern Research Discussed. High lights of the meeting yesterday were the reports of the committees led by Wilson Gee, University of Virginia, on "Social Research in the South," and the annual dinner with E. T. Krueger, Vanderbilt University, speaking on "Our Society Looks Forward," and Robert E. Park, University of Chicago, discussing "Social Change and News."

In the closing session last night, Weyland J. Hayes, Vanderbilt, pointed out the different views held by various schools of thought concerning southern control, and suggested differential planning by a regional planning committee.

"In actual control of the region," he said, "are many machine politicians who have brought ruin upon the people and continually betray them by exploiting the sectional fears and hatreds."

Regional Planning Outlined. At the same session, Rupert B. Vance, University of North Carolina, spoke on the application of regional planning to the southeast, and Dr. Odum closed the meeting with a discussion of theoretical and research implications of regionalism.

Other speakers on the day's program included Corrie E. Moore, Florida State College; Edward M. Kahn, Thomas B. Mimms, state welfare department; Guy R. Johnson, University of North Carolina; Marian W. Gilmore, Tulane University; and Floyd N. House, University of Virginia.

Sessions today, opening at 9 o'clock, will be devoted to the teaching of sociology and discussion of rural life and problems. A directed tour this afternoon, closing the convention, will take the group through Atlanta slum-clearance projects.

DR. WOODWARD HEADS
SOCIAL WORK GROUP

Dr. Comer M. Woodward, head of the Emory University department of sociology, was elected president of the Georgia Conference on Social Work yesterday morning at the closing session of the annual convention held here this week.

Dr. Woodward succeeds Thomas B. Mimms, acting executive secretary of the State Department of Public Welfare.

Other officers named included Miss Louise Fitzsimmons, assistant FERA administrator for Georgia, first vice president; Henry B. Skeels, of Savannah, second vice president; A. Steve Nance, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, third vice president; and Henry B. Mays Jr., field representative of the State Department of Public Welfare, treasurer.

Executive board members named at the meeting were Miss Frances Burkhalter and Miss Rose Marie Smith, both of Savannah, and Frank Miller, of Atlanta.

CONCRETE

SURPRISINGLY LOW COST

INEVITABLY, tornadoes will strike again. And when they do, death and destruction ride in their wake—unless you are prepared! Rebuild business buildings now with properly designed reinforced concrete.

Properly designed reinforced concrete buildings are proof against tornadoes because foundations, walls, floors, frame and roof are cast monolithically in strong, rigid concrete. And concrete withstands the fires that so often follow storm.

Write us today for interesting information on how to build with this material. Let us tell you about the new technique which creates concrete structures of distinctive beauty at no extra cost. Look at the examples in the South—the Hall County jail at Gainesville, the Columbia, S. C. courthouse, the Atlanta jail, Georgia State Prison at Reidsville, and scores of other buildings, large and small.

Concrete homes are storm-proof, too. They're gaining rapidly in popularity because they offer, in addition, fire-safety, comfort, low upkeep and long life at low cost.

Before you build, talk your problem over with architects and contractors who are experienced in reinforced concrete and let them show you the advantages of this material.

It will pay you to be sure that your architect and contractor are thoroughly experienced in reinforced concrete construction. You'll get a better job and save money.

Atlanta Tammany Asks Charter in Court Here

New York's famed Tammany hall is going to have a rival in Atlanta, it appeared yesterday.

A group of Atlantans filed a petition for a charter for Tammany, Inc., in Fulton superior court yesterday afternoon.

Naming Joe Ray, W. E. Hopkins, F. K. Banks, J. C. West, J. H. Williams, A. C. Ayers and W. R. Masson as petitioners, the charter application set forth that Tammany was to be an incorporated social and political club for Georgians.

Its purpose is to encourage good government, cultivate social, political and fraternal intercourse, relieve distressed brothers, promote friendship and teach patriotism and fidelity to the constitution of the state of Georgia and the United States of America. Its main headquarters would be in Atlanta but the right to establish branches in any Georgia city or county is asked. Requests to collect fees, dues and assessments were also made.

George L. Bell, Paul Ginsberg, J. W. Weaver and Samuel A. Masson are attorneys for the Tammany petitioners.

Southern Research Discussed. High lights of the meeting yesterday were the reports of the committees led by Wilson Gee, University of Virginia, on "Social Research in the South," and the annual dinner with E. T. RED CROSS EXPECTS $300,000 BY MONDAY

Record Receipt of Funds for Storm Relief Anticipated After Intensive Drive.

The concentrated drive to be launched this morning by Red Cross relief workers will raise the state disaster relief fund to $300,000 by Monday, Willis J. Milner Jr., state relief chairman, predicted last night. Approximately $250,000 came into the Atlanta relief center yesterday, bringing the city fund to about $150,000, and the state fund above $250,000.

A record inflow of funds is expected today and tomorrow as the result of the state-wide radio dramatization of the Gainesville disaster last night and the intensive week-end drive to be started by Red Cross workers this morning. This campaign, like the broadcast, will be directed to every home in the state, officials said.

Admiral Views Ruins.

Authoritative opinions on damage and rehabilitation are expected to be given Atlanta Red Cross officials today by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, president of the American Red Cross, who inspected the Gainesville ruins yesterday. The admiral was accompanied on his tour by Robert E. Bondy, national director of disaster relief; Stone J. Crane and William Carl Hunt, both of the Red Cross.

About 50 theaters in Georgia and in eastern Alabama will stage benefit shows tomorrow. The films are being furnished by Atlanta distributors. Total collections will go to the relief fund, after receipts have been credited to Red Cross chapters in the communities in which they are contributed.

Donations Listed.

The largest donation made yesterday afternoon was reported as that of the employees of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, who contributed $458.55. The management already had given $100.

Religious organizations and schools contributing were: Phillips Baptist Sunday school, $2; Abavath Achim Bible class, $7.50; Girls' High, $14.30; Highland school, $13; Smith school, $15.20; A. W. Ware school, $18; J. Allen Cough school, $9; Pentecostal church, $5; Susannah Wesley Bible class and Bethany Methodist church, $2; Fairview Sunday school, Putnam county, $7.

Other donations included: Hiwassee Red Cross, $20; Southern Freight and Tariff Bureau employees, $21.75; Alco-Glucose, Inc. employees, $21.75; Clark Thread Company employees and officials, $440.70; Campbell Coal Company employees, $4.95; Walker Electric Company employees, $75; Davison-Paxon employees, $7; Crawford Long hospital, $5; Piedmont hospital, $54.15; Nacoochee Woman's Club at Suwanee, $5; Italian-American Club of Atlanta, $10.50; Atlanta Division No. 180, Order of Railway Conductors, $100; and Garden Hills Club, $58.50.

Citizens of the following cities contributed: Dover, $17.50; St. Mary's, $46; Hogshead, $22.21; Georgetown, $34; Surrency, $55.17; and Meansville, $15.

PROBATIONER GETS SECOND SENTENCE

Lottery Conviction Came Short Time After Talmadge
Granted Clemency.

Given executive clemency recently on a 12-month chain gang sentence for carrying a pistol without license, Cecil Johnson was fined $500 yesterday in Fulton criminal court on a lottery charge.

Johnson was put on probation after payment of $75, by Governor Talmadge recently. He had been found guilty of illegally carrying a weapon and Judge Jesse M. Wood imposed a straight chain gang sentence on him. Before he served a day in prison, the Governor reduced the sentence to the small fine.

County police caught Johnson and James Floyd recently in a car with lottery tickets. Floyd was sentenced to pay a fine of $150 or serve 12 months on the lottery charge but Judge Wood fined him $500 with the alternative of serving 12 months. He paid the fine, and also one of $100 for speeding.

Raymond Jenkins, charged with lottery offense in another case, was sentenced to a fine of $300 or to serve 12 months yesterday.

ROADHOUSE OPERATOR FINED IN LIQUOR CASE

George Morris, alias Mackus, operator of a Peachtree roadhouse, was found guilty in Fulton criminal court yesterday of possessing whisky.

Judge Jesse M. Wood imposed a fine of $300 or 12 months imprisonment. County police, who made the raid, said Mackus locked the liquor in a safe when he saw them coming. One of the officers, however, saw Mackus shut the safe door and forced him to open it after threatening to blast the strongbox with dynamite.

Peter DeGouras, jointly accused with Mackus, was found not guilty.

Other camp dates follow: Fort McClelland, Ala., and Fort Barancas, Fla., July 29-August 27; Fort Moultrie, S. C., and Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., August 2-September 1; and Fort Bragg, N. C., August 6-September 3.

Atlanta Looks at the Sun Through Clouds of Fine Ice

$1,475 IS GIVEN ALLEN FOR ROOSEVELT ENTRY

Several Thousand More Pledged To Pay $10,000 Fee in Race.

Marion H. Allen, President Roosevelt's Georgia campaign manager, yesterday announced that he had received $1,475 of the $10,000 needed to pay the President's entry fee in Georgia preferential primary set for June 3 and that "several thousands additional had been pledged."

The campaign manager said that the money received included donations of $500 each given by Judge Ogden Persons and his brother, Robert Persons, of Forsyth, and by the Roosevelt supporters of Chatham county.

"All Georgia is responding to the call for funds to pay this excessive fee," Campaign Manager Allen said. "It is high and money is scarce, but we will raise it all in a few days."

Allen said that the pledges he had received had come from 25 counties. "Some of them already have their cash in hand but have not yet transmitted it to my office," Allen said.

"Some of the counties will send it in by mail, while others are planning on bringing their contributions to Atlanta themselves."

The campaign manager said that the funds actually received in addition to the $1,475 donations were $100 from the P. A. supporters in the radio-stricken Hall county, $100 from Corveta county, $100 from Baldwin county, $100 from Turner county and $75 from Wilkinson county.

"Baldwin is my home county and the Roosevelt supporters down there have promised more if it develops we need it," Allen said. The Roosevelt forces in Baldwin are headed by Marion Ennis.

Meanwhile arrangements are being made to get the personal entry of the President. Under the rules laid down by the democratic executive committee, each candidate personally must sign his own entrance card.

There is a general feeling over the state that there will be no primary. Governor Talmadge, the only leader outspoken in his criticism of the President and his administration, is understood not to plan to enter the primary.

Here is the ring around the sun that excited Atlanta for about three hours yesterday, as Kenneth Rogers' camera saw it from atop The Constitution building. It is no ill omen; it occurs frequently and the only unusual fact about it was its rare brilliance, said Chief Forecaster George W. Minding. The circle was delicately shaded from a deep pink to a vivid white. A rainbow or a ring around the moon happens in the same fashion.

High Clouds Loaded With Ice Cause Pink and White Halo Around Sun

That pink and white halo around the sun for about three hours yesterday morning was very little more than a corresponding ring around the moon, often observed, was the comforting word to thousands of Atlantans yesterday from George W. Minding, chief of the United States Weather Bureau.

"The only thing rare about yesterday's halo was its brilliance," said Mr. Minding. "Such rings can be seen from one to four or five times a month, but much less distinctly."

"They are the result of thin clouds passing before the sun. The clouds are at a great height and consequently they consist of fine particles of ice instead of moisture. The sun's rays passing through this ice haze cause a refraction, in much the same manner that a rainbow is formed or a ring around the moon."

The rings that occur frequently are not observed by the average person because the sun's rays are too bright for the human eye. The icy cloud yesterday, however, softened the brilliance of the sun as the ring appeared and persons were able to view the halo with the naked eye.

The phenomena startled many Atlantans. Telephones to newspaper offices were busy with calls from persons who feared that some disaster was approaching. Some persons described what they saw as "icicles around the sun."

"It is hardly probable that icicles will gather on the sun in our generation," assured Minding. And he

CHURCH WILL HONOR INTERMEDIATE LEADER

Miss Mary Alice Bibb, associate secretary of the intermediate Sunday school department of the Southern Baptist Convention, will be the guest at a dinner tonight at Druid Hills Baptist church which will be attended by officers and teachers of the intermediate department of that church. Miss Bibb will be the guest of the intermediate department tomorrow morning. She is on her way to Celatown to attend the Georgia Baptist Sunday school convention Monday.

Miss Marie Cooper, superintendent of the intermediate department of the Druid Hills church, arranged the dinner and the Sunday engagements. Leadership of intermediate activities for several years throughout the south has given Miss Bibb, it is said, a wide experience in dealing with problems of intermediate work in local churches and in suggesting solutions to these problems. She is a native of Illinois.

LEADER WILL ADDRESS GOVERNMENT WORKERS

Arnold S. Zander, national president of the State, County and Municipal Employees Association, will be guest of the Atlanta local at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Labor Temple, Walter C. Carraway, secretary of the Atlanta branch, announced.

Zander will stop in Atlanta en route to his home at Madison, Wis., from Columbus, Ga., where he attended the Georgia Federation of Labor convention. All city, county and state employees are invited to attend.

ATLANTANS ASSIGNED TO NEW ARMY POSTS

Two Atlanta army officers have been assigned new posts, it was reported yesterday.

Captain Arthur K. Chambers, now with a coast artillery unit in Hawaii, has been assigned to the third coast artillery regiment at Fort Stevens, Oregon. He is to assume his new duties as soon as he completes his present service.

Captain Hugh C. Elliot, stationed at Olathe, Kan., as field artillery instructor for the state national guard, has been ordered to Madison barracks, New York, effective November 1.

ADAM HECKER RITES ARE SET FOR TODAY

Final rites for Adam Hecker, member of a pioneer Ohio family and father of Miss Minna Hecker, prominent Atlanta musician, will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Dr. John Moore Walker will officiate, and burial will be in West View cemetery.

Mr. Hecker, who had lived here since he moved from Marion, Ohio, 35 years ago, died Thursday at a private hospital. He was 87, and resided at 106 Drewry street, N. E.

BAPTIST TABERNACLE RAIDED BY BURGLARS

Theft of a typewriter and an adding machine, valued at $100, from the Baptist Tabernacle on Luckie street was reported to police yesterday by Miss Vivian Perkins, secretary.

Miss Perkins discovered the theft when she opened her office. She told police entrance had been gained through a window.

The robbery was the fifth reported from churches in Atlanta within the past two weeks. Other churches recently robbed are the Capitol Avenue Baptist, First Baptist, Central Presbyterian and Peachtree Christian.

ARREST OF WEEKS ORDERED BY COURT

Supreme Court Reversal of Habeas Corpus Means Youth Must End Term.

Another step in the turbulent career of Carl Weeks, white youth, came yesterday when an order for his arrest was given all Fulton police. Weeks was convicted in both federal and state courts of auto theft in 1934 and received a total of 36 months and one day in sentences.

Recently, while in a Fulton chain gang camp, he won his freedom on a habeas corpus petition, but yesterday officers were looking for him again.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey granted Weeks freedom on the habeas corpus on the grounds that, while serving his sentence of a year and a day in the federal penitentiary, he had also served his two 12-month state sentences, which were made to run concurrently.

However, the state appealed Judge Dorsey's decision and the Georgia supreme court yesterday reversed the superior court judge, which canceled the freedom of Weeks.

AGNES SCOTT SINGERS STAGE OPERA TONIGHT

The Agnes Scott College Glee Club will present "The Pirates of Penzance," a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Glenn Memorial auditorium with the Emory University Glee Club as sponsors.

Frank Sule, who sang the masculine lead, Frederick, with a New York organization, will fill the role again, while Augusta King, of Atlanta, will sing the part of Mabel, leading feminine role. The other leads will be sung by Amelia Nickels, Atlanta; Alice Chamlee, Canton; Ruth Tate, Banner Elk, N. C.; Dick Smoot, Eugene Traber, Charlie White, Don White and Walton Bobb. These singers will be assisted by the Agnes Scott College Glee Club and a chorus of Atlanta and Decatur male voices.

2 MORE SCHOOLS SHUT BY STUDENT PROTESTS

HAZLETON, Pa., April 17.—(AP)—Uproarious pupils of Hazle township carried their strike to two more schools today, throwing classes into confusion and precipitating the first disorder of the four-day-old protest against dismissal of 12 teachers.

In turbulent raids at the Japan building and Oakdale Junior High school, massed pickets shunted aside pupils who tried to break through their ranks, invaded classrooms and raised such an uproar that classes were impossible.

5 PERSONS INDICTED IN ELECTION FRAUDS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 17.—(AP)—Five persons, including two suspended deputy sheriffs, were indicted by the county grand jury today in connection with illegal attempted frauds during the biennial registration here last August.

The five, indicted on charges of conspiracy to procure fraudulent registrations, are: Clarence Barry and Richard Taylor, suspended deputies; Charley Smith, a democratic nominee for magistrate; W. L. Schleiger, and a negro, Eli Hodges.

TOMORROW'S CHILD

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

INSTALLMENT ONE

"Val...! You're not really in New York!"

She was, Val said rather calmly, really in New York—though she herself found it hard to believe. "We've reached the hotel—Mrs. Warren and I. Not five minutes ago." She said then, hopefully, "I know you're all booked up tonight, but what about lunch tomorrow? I haven't seen you in almost two years, Kate."

"But where are you?" Kate Hollister's deep voice boomed over the wire. "Where are you, child?"

Val had hurriedly explained that she and Mrs. Warren had come on a shopping expedition and would go back to New Manchester late Friday afternoon.

"Have you had dinner? But of course you haven't and you're probably starved. Listen, Val—get your dinner, put on your prettiest frock, lock Mrs. Warren in for the night and be in the lobby at 8:30. We'll come down for you. I'm having a gang out and I need you terribly. I do hope you've grown a little older."

Smiling, Val said, "Not a great deal, I expect; but I'll try not to get underfoot. You're sure I won't be busting in where I shouldn't?"

It was like Kate to ignore that. "I think you should tell Mrs. Warren not to look for you before noon tomorrow. These little orgies go on and on—and anyway I want you to stay here. I'm mad to see you, child."

Turning from the little telephone table, Val found Mrs. Warren standing in the doorway of her bedroom. Short, plump, middle-aged for 20 years, Mrs. Warren was never at ease. She stood there blinking, hands clasped against her waistline, palms rubbing nervously.

Val walked across the room, her weight mostly on her toes, wheeled and came back smiling. "I'm going to a party, Warren. At Miss Hollister's apartment. You won't mind staying alone tonight, will you? You're perfectly safe here, you know."

Mrs. Warren stared, swallowed hard. Val knew what she was thinking. "What would her Aunt Mahala say? What would Mr. Robert think? Miss Hollister was Val's cousin and a very nice young lady, but—it wouldn't look right, coming to New York to buy her wedding clothes and then dashing off to a party. . . .

Val knew what Aunt Mahala would say. "Kate's a good enough girl and I won't tell you to avoid your own flesh and blood, though she's no kin of mine— with a little toss of her white head— but she's five years younger than you, Valentine, and she's lived around New York too long to be as pure and simple as she might make out." . . . And Robert. . . . Robert had had his say, in that moment before Val boarded the train.

Facing her by the chair car steps, he had mildly echoed his earlier protest. "I still think you should have taken Lucy or Mother along, Val. New York isn't New Manchester, you know. Suppose something happens?"

Val had thought, "I'm going to be frightfully disappointed if something doesn't, darling." But she had looked up at him and smiled sweetly, for Robert Greeley was the sort of young man you rather liked to have kiss you good-bye on a crowded railway station platform. Not quite as tall as you might have wished but nicely proportioned and young and definitely good-looking with his coffee-colored hair and slanting blue eyes that were always grave and always perfectly sure of themselves. And she had said through a reassuring smile, "You shouldn't worry so, Robert. I'm 20 and fairly well informed about the facts of life—even if Aunt Mahala does treat me as if I'd been born without a brain."

She remembered the conductor calling to them then, remembered Robert suddenly bending over to kiss her, but not kissing her yet. . . .

"You're an infant, Val. Innocent and therefore helpless in a world that has no patience with innocence. Be careful, for my sake." Then he kissed her. From the train window she saw the last glimpse of Robert, getting into his car, hurrying back to the office to assert his prerogatives as a junior partner in his father's prosperous law firm.

Amused now at Mrs. Warren's worried look, Val said, "Don't look so tragic, Warren. This may be the last fun I'll ever have. The thought of Robert and was a little ashamed, though she knew she was right. Robert's idea of fun was to sit by the fire and discuss politics and the inevitability of war in Europe. But she didn't bother to explain. Mrs. Warren wouldn't understand.

Mrs. Warren shifted, uneasily. "You haven't anything to wear, Miss Val." she said. "Your aunt made me take out that black dress with the big bow. . . .

Laughing, Val opened her small bag, which was supposed to contain toilet articles, and removed a pair of green sandals, two pairs of stockings and a carefully wrapped package. She opened the package and took out the green velvet frock. "Not a wrinkle, if you'll observe," she said, and amended, "—hardly."

"The one," Mrs. Warren said with an audible catch of her breath, "with no back. Oh, Miss Val—"

"Don't be ridiculous," Val said. "Of course it has a back. Look. . . ."

Val was coming out of the elevator when Hugh Malcolm first saw her, a tall, slim, hipped girl in a green frock with a coat flung over one arm. Kate had gone to the desk to call Val's room. He saw that this girl's hair was more red than brown, that her eyes were very dark and that she was as fresh and stimulating as the wind in your face and regretfully young. And then he heard Kate's screech and realized with a start that this was Kate's young cousin, Valentine Clarke, New Manchester. She was not, he reflected, quite the awkward adolescent that Kate had made her out, but not more than 18, certainly, and, if he knew the age—as if there was anyone who knew quite so well as he would, inevitably, say something cute when she learned who he was. "Not the Hugh Malcolm! Not the enormously famous and incredibly youthful playwright!"

She didn't, of course. She said in her offhand way when Kate introduced them, "I've never seen one of your plays, but I read 'Moons for Babies' and I thought you gave my generation an undeserved slap in the face." Kate grinned. Val certainly didn't look a day older than when she had seen her two years ago, the week after Barrie Clarke was killed in an air transport crash near Moscow; but she was older and the child's old awkwardness had given way to a magnificent poise.

Hugh said, "Moons for Babies" was written three years ago. You couldn't have been more than 15. How do you figure generations?"

She looked at him, half smiling, found him attractive, quite so tall, very tall, and solidly built; not handsome nor anything like it, but, with his thick black hair and gray eyes and exceedingly masculine mouth and chin, good to look at. You liked him at once and you had the feeling he liked you; and you knew, or thought you knew, that he would always be like neither of you feeling very much one way or the other.

"Don't insult the child," Kate said. "Three years ago she was 17 and chasing her charming father all over the world. . . . You are 20, aren't you, darling?"

"Last May," Val said, and turned her disconcertingly direct gaze on Hugh. "You aren't so old yourself," she told him. "Twenty-five—pretty six at most. I looked you up after I read your play."

His gray eyes questioned the truth of that. She was guessing. "And was that all you learned about me?" he asked, grinning.

Kate asked, "Do you think I should run up and speak to Warren before we go, Val?"

"They paid no attention," Val said. "You were born in some little place in Georgia and played football at Cornell. Your first play was produced on Broadway before you were graduated. Your favorite sport is fresh-water fishing. Or is it deep-sea?" Suddenly laughing.

"That ought to hold you for the present, Old-timer," Kate said to Hugh. "Arch now we'll postpone this clash of great minds until we're in the car, if you don't mind. Those mad synapses are probably wrecking my apartment."

Hugh said, vaguely, "Fresh-water was right," and there was more than casual interest in his eyes as, walking between the two girls, he looked down at Val's lovely profile. Eighteen or 20, she was still pathetically young and he must not forget it—but even in that first look at her, when she was coming out of the elevator, he had been more the dramatist than the man, more interested in her as a symbol of her age than as a girl.

What perhaps he himself did not realize at the moment was that this girl had projected herself on his consciousness as the prototype of a character about which his indefatigable brain was already spinning the chronicle of a new play.

Wherever you looked in Kate Hollister's life you found a paradox. At 28 she was editor of a fashion magazine, a recognized authority on antique furniture, and a prolific writer on a variety of subjects of interest to women. Large of frame, very blonde, and with less taste in clothes than the average man, she was probably the most carefully dressed woman of independent means in the whole city of New York. Nowhere in her five-room apartment was there a piece of furniture that was not conspicuously modern. And as her friends well knew and accepted in good spirit, she held that most women were intolerable bores, and had once said that if she were forced to choose, she would gladly become the wife of a patriotic bod-carrier before she would endure the stupidities assured by another woman's living in her apartment.

Kate's mother had been Val's father's only sister and there had long been a bond of real affection between the two girls. But since immediately after her father's death in the airplane crash in Russia when she had gone to live with her Aunt Mahala Jessup-Doran in New Manchester, Val had had only occasional word of Kate and had not seen her at all.

She wondered what kind of people she would meet at Kate's apartment. They would be interesting, of course. The danger was that they would be too interesting, too clever.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farley, Ph.D.

That roaring and swishing sound that is heard in the background of all transoceanic broadcasts has nothing whatever to do with the roaring waves and howling winds over the ocean, as many listeners have. These sounds are due to noises in the atmosphere, such as static and various electrical disturbances which are picked up by the receiving stations and are amplified along with the broadcast program. Such noises are present in the background in greater or lesser degree in every long-distance radio circuit.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

One day, during my visit in Mexico City, I went to see the most famous pyramid in Mexico. It is known as the Pyramid of the Sun, and is located 28 miles northeast of the capital city.

The Pyramid of the Sun was built by people who lived in the valley of Mexico long ago. We do know just how those people were, but it seems likely that they lived in the valley before the Aztecs and Toltecs. The exact age is not known, but the pyramid is believed to be not less than 1,500 years and not more than 3,000 years old.

The Pyramid of the Sun covers an area of about 12 acres, and the height is 216 feet. When a person looks at the structure from a distance of a hundred yards or so, he is filled with wonder that such a mighty thing should have been built.

A tunnel cut into the pyramid has proved that it is formed in large part of adobe, a kind of clay. This clay, when cut into shape and baked in the sun, forms the "adobe bricks" so widely used in building Mexican homes.

Adobe blocks were piled together until they had the general form of the pyramid. Then they were covered with a "facing" of stone. The base was perhaps intended to be a square, but two sides are wider than the other two. On one side is a staircase—a series of stairways for there are four terraces on the way up. The total number of steps is 222, and the average height of each is a little less than one foot.

As the sun is an oblong platform, 50 feet wide and 105 feet long. It is supposed that a temple once stood on this platform, but if there was one it is gone now. It is also believed that the place was at one time used for worship of the sun, which explains the name.

The Pyramid of the Sun covers very nearly as much ground as the largest one in Egypt, the Pyramid of Gizeh, but it is not quite half as high. Relics found around the Pyramid of the Sun lead scientists to believe that it was at the center of a city with an area of about eight square miles. Among the other buildings in the area are the Pyramid of the Moon, and a mighty temple adorned with many images of a "snake-god."

TWO TYPES OF UNDERWEIGHT.

Statistics support the old adage, "A lean horse for a long race." Of course, this is true only of the healthy type of horses.

It is not always the amount of underweight that influences health, for even a marked degree of underweight may be compatible with perfect health. Subcutaneous and muscle tissue is the most important ing or subtracting weight. For underweights the general routine is wholesome diet with planned rest, rational exercise, and plenty of sunshine. Rest, before or after meals, and both, if possible, is a most effective weight-gaining measure.

food without gaining an ounce. These "constitutionally thin" have a high percentage of active tissue and extravagantly burn all their calories, leaving no surplus for fat storage. Their weight seldom varies, and they maintain fixed weight over long periods of time, no matter what they eat.

The less enviable underweights are characterized by weak musculature, "nerves" and no endurance. A flimsy appetite interferes with their eating, and the need for food isn't very important to them, and eating enough is an effort which they cannot be bothered to make. As McClellan points out, "The types of leanness have nothing in common except underweight."

Regarding the system of leanness, you can add curves by keeping your calorie intake higher than your energy output. It is as true for the underweight as for the overweight that calories are either burned as fuel or stored as fat.

There is no magic formula for adding curves to be entertained by Mrs. J. Ross Garner, 2795 Peachtree road, N. E., at 2:30 o'clock today, and all Zetas are invited to attend. NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—An attitude of caution prevailed in the bond market today, resulting in most of the active issues yielding only fractionally either way from levels of the preceding day.

Some of the longer term government obligations found buyers at advances of 1-32 to 5-32, but most of the short term maturities and industrial issues drifted to the outside. Sales of $670,000 were less than half of Thursday's business when the great majority of active issues found new high levels for a year or longer before slipping back under profit-taking.

Government bond circles displayed keen interest in the street ticker reports telling of the possibility of substantial curtailment in the lending authority of several government agencies over the next few months, indicating the treasury was laying plans to cushion any psychological shock that might result from large-scale cashing of bonds issued to pay the soldiers' bonus.

The Home Owners' Loan Corporation, the Farm Credit Administration, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were among the agencies reported to be under consideration for possible curtailment in lending authority. The Home Owners' Loan Corporation will be the first to have its operations curtailed, it was expected to have a good-sized balance unused.

The narrowness of changes were the rule among bank and industrial corporate bonds. Bonds were included to ease into utilities were mixed and industrial issues a bit steeper. New York Central 6s were a point lower at 113 1-4, St. Paul 5s yielded as much as 20-1-4 and fractional declines were shown by Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2, Utility Power & Light 5s and Warner Bros. 6s. Gainers included Western Union 8s, American Rolling Mill 4 1-4s, and Gould Coupler 6s.

A minor rise in some of the Italian issues was the principal development in the foreign department. The Associated Press averages were unchanged for all groups except the industrials, which were 1 point higher at 102 1-2.
